

WOMEN'S HISTORY MONTH Chrysler Designers

Growing up in Akron, Ohio, Jenn Baugher began her formal involvement with automobiles at the tender age of eight, when she and her engineer father built and raced a Soap Box Derby car. A talent and interest in art propelled her into enrolling at the Cleveland Institute of Art, where she began to study automobile design in earnest. Today, she is a lighting and vehicle exterior designer with Fiat Chrysler Automobiles in Detroit, Michigan. Jenn is committed to informing young women about the exciting opportunities that await in the automobile design field.

Tajikistan is hardly a location renowned for car design, but émigré Irina Zavatski has made a name for herself in Detroit with the creation of the new generation of Chrysler Pacifica. Like Jenn Baugher, Irina is a Cleveland Institute of Art graduate, who has had an influence over every aspect of the newly-redesigned minivan. Her unique perspective regarding women's and family's requirements for convenience and comfort in a modern vehicle guided the design from concept to reality. Jenn and Irina's careers in automobile design bring a much-needed breath of fresh air to a field in which women's participation has been previously minimal.
